Instructional Technologies Announces Integration with Compli Adds Full Library of Pro-TREAD Online Safety Lessons to Transportation Platform

Portland, OR, March 04, 2011 – Instructional Technologies (ITI), the industry leading developer of online driver safety training products, announces the integration of their Pro-TREAD training lessons within Compli®'s web-based platform. Compli® is the nation's trusted provider of HR and compliance management software. This strategic relationship allows all Compli fleet customers to both automatically, and on an as-needed basis, assign driver safety lessons to employees based on user-defined criteria or due to actionable events, including CSA inspection violations, identified within Compli.

“We look for integration partners who can provide industry leading content and expertise, and that clearly describes ITI. We were very impressed with them and with the results achieved by their customers,” said Lon Leneve, President & CEO of Compli. “We have taken their entire library of over 70 Pro-TREAD multi-media, on-line lessons and made them seamlessly available on our platform. With the pre-existing industry safety requirements, combined with the rollout of our unique CSA tracking and compliance module, it is critical to provide our transportation customers with a single online location where they can identify needs for every driver, deliver and launch trainings, monitor progress, and document completion” concluded Leneve.

“Trucking fleets suffer from the huge burden of having to manage a growing list of compliance tasks with multiple, single-point products and vendors that typically work independently, creating an enormous amount of inefficiency and margin for error,” said Dr. Jim Voorhees, President & CEO of ITI. “What impressed me with Compli is that their compliance management system has been successfully working as a one-stop, integrated solution in heavily regulated industries for years, and together we saw a perfect fit combined with our industry-leading training lessons to do the same in the trucking business. This type of “one-stop” solution is critical to help meet the demands of the CSA program,” noted Voorhees.

Customers who use both Pro-TREAD and Compli products agree with Dr. Voorhees. “Before the integration we would see our CSA performance and document our response through Compli, but would still have to manage our long-time use of Pro-TREAD lessons separately,” stated Nicole Hollamon, Safety Director for Kool Pak, a Portland, OR based refrigerated carrier. “Now, with the integration, I can either manually or automatically respond with remediation lessons via Compli. I can conveniently manage compliance for all my employees in Compli’s system, including training they take in the cab, and all of it is instantly and automatically documented in each employees electronic personnel file. It’s incredibly efficient and effective.” concluded Hollamon
